Labor in Library Publishing
Library Publishing Forum 2018
Who We Are:

Nina Collins, Purdue University Press
(@collinsnnina)

Emily Gattozzi, Bowling Green State Libraries
(@emilygattozzi)

Annie Johnson, Temple University Libraries/Press
(@anniekjohn)
People Before Platforms
“When we think about ‘open’ and labor, who do we imagine doing the work? What is the work we imagine being done? Who pays? Who benefits? (And how?)”
-Audrey Watters, “Invisible Labor and Digital Utopias”
How does staffing and/or your organization’s structure dictate the services you offer?
What does it mean if you are charging for services versus offering them for free?
What are the successes and challenges you have encountered based on your structure?
How can we keep this conversation going after the Forum?
Thank you!
nkcollin@purdue.edu
emilydg@bgsu.edu
annie.johnson@temple.edu

Presentation template by Slides Carnival