INTRODUCTION

Welcome to the eighth annual Library Publishing Directory, the most comprehensive resource detailing the wide range of scholarly publishing activities in libraries across the United States and the world. Compiled by the Library Publishing Coalition (LPC), the Directory provides a detailed overview of the diverse library publishing landscape, sharing the activities, technologies, developments, organizational structure, strategic partnerships, and priorities of library publishers worldwide. While the LPC is a membership organization, membership is not required for inclusion in the Directory; participation is open to any academic or research library engaged in publishing.

The most notable change this year has been the pilot partnership between the LPC and the International Federation of Library Associations (IFLA) Library Publishing Special Interest Group (LibPub SIG). This collaboration furthers our mutual engagement with the international community of library publishers. Submissions were sought from libraries and library consortia across the globe to include in both the Library Publishing Directory and a planned IFLA searchable online database. The goal of the LibPub SIG database is to document more fully the publishing activities to which IFLA's member libraries contribute, thus facilitating a global community of interest and support. While this first year's focus is on scholarly/academic library publishers, in the future, the SIG plans to expand its database with submissions from all types of library publishers: academic, public, and others.

Entries in the Library Publishing Directory comprise one of the most comprehensive research datasets for institutions looking at trends in library publishing. In this year's edition, we feature the work of 150 library publishers across the globe. As in past years, the majority of submissions are from North America. However, this year's Directory includes 30 institutions from Australia, Brazil, Czech Republic, Denmark, Germany, Hong Kong, Ireland, Malaysia, Norway, Romania, Russia, Serbia, South Africa, and Ukraine. Just over 40% of the library publishers listed in the 2021 Directory are LPC members.

As part of the pilot collaboration with LibPub SIG, submitters were provided the option of completing either an abbreviated or full survey. The shorter survey captured basic summary information about the library and its publishing program; the long-form survey asked for more details about publication types, output quantities, publishing partners, services offered, software and platforms utilized, staffing, and funding. Ninety percent of the submitters completed the long form of the survey; 10% opted to complete only the brief survey. Only responses from the long-form survey appear in this Directory.

We expected an increase in submissions for this year's Directory with the partnership with LibPub SIG and the focused outreach to the IFLA community. However, submissions for this edition of the Directory were slightly lower than last year. The most plausible reason may be the disruption to normal activities and workflows resulting from the global COVID-19 outbreak. While we feel this year's Directory successfully reflects the vibrancy of the library publishing community, we believe the community will survive and continue to thrive into the future.

The LPC Directory Committee oversees the collection of data and authoring processes, including distributing the survey, analyzing the data provided by respondents, proofreading submissions, and preparing for print production. This year's Directory Committee was chaired by Janet Swatscheno (University of Illinois at Chicago), and included Perry Collins (University of Florida), Ellen Dubinsky (University of Arizona), Ian Harmon (West Virginia University), and Laura Miller (Florida State University). Ann Okerson (Center for Research Libraries) and Grace Liu (University of Windsor) from IFLA's LibPub SIG worked in close collaboration with the LPC Directory Committee in this pilot project. Melanie Schlosser and Nancy Adams (Educopia Institute) facilitated and provided administrative and technical support.

THE 2021 LIBRARY PUBLISHING LANDSCAPE

The yearly Library Publishing Directory provides insights into library publishing activities, allowing us to consider how the field has evolved, prevalent current practice, and possible future directions. While we discuss trends below—often in comparison to prior years—please note that the number and composition of the dataset of Directory listings changes yearly; thus a strict comparison from year to year is not possible. Furthermore, complicating any analysis of the data are changes to the survey itself. We do try to update the survey as changes in technology and publishing platforms emerge. The Directory Committee routinely evaluates the data model to ensure that it best reflects the library publishing field. Many of the survey questions remain the same from year to year and new questions are periodically added. This year's collaboration with LibPub SIG and the resultant focus on the international community of library publishers prompted the addition of a question about languages used in publications and added additional types of library publisher (public library and consortium).

We also point out that the survey was distributed in August 2020, over six months after the COVID-19 outbreak and the ensuing disruption of “business as usual.” We did not attempt to incorporate any questions related to the pandemic and how or if it has affected library publishing activities. This is an area that should be considered in future editions of the Directory.

GENERAL DEMOGRAPHICS

Over two-thirds of the library publishers in the 2021 Directory consider their publishing efforts to be “established” rather than in a pilot or early stage of development. Three entries from Europe reported beginning library publishing activity before 1990: the National Library of the Czech Republic (1777), the City Library of Pančevo (Serbia, 1934), and the Central Library of the Forschungszentrum Jülich (Germany, 1960). Nine libraries began publishing activities in the 1990s, 72 began publishing activities between 2000 and 2009, and 62 reported publishing activities began 2010 or later.

Over half (81) of the library publishers are organized as a centralized library publishing unit or department. About 23% are organized across more than one library unit or department. Over two-thirds of the library publishers do not operate with an advisory or editorial board.

FUNDING & STAFFING

Since 2013, the Library Publishing Directory survey has asked library publishers to report the sources of their funding. Every year thus far the majority of respondents have indicated that all or most of their funding comes from their library’s operating budget. There was no change to this trend in the data this year: for the 2021 Directory, 62 library publishers reported that 100% of the funding for their activities came from the library operating budget. An additional 27 reported that the majority of their funding (50%–99%) came from the library operating budget. Fourteen library publishers reported receiving all or most of their funding (50%–100%) from the library materials budget. Nonlibrary campus budgets funded some or all of the library publishing activity for 13 library publishers: 6 received all or most of their funding (50%–100%) from these budgets and 7 received some funding support (5%–30%) from this source. One library reported that 100% of its funding came from grants and one indicated that over half of its budget came from an endowment. Other sources of funding identified include charge backs and cost sharing and contributions. No library, since 2019, has indicated receiving any funding from licensing revenue. Four library publishers (two of which are consortia) indicated that the majority or all of their budgets were funded by other non-identified sources.

Identifying trends in the staffing of library publishing programs is challenging (due to a few large publishing programs with very big staffs) and warrants a deeper analysis than we can offer here. This year’s data revealed that the average amount of professional staff FTE involved in library publishing activity is 2.6 (129 respondents). The average FTE for paraprofessional staff was 2.7 (56 respondents). Student staffing is much lower; the average FTE for graduate students involved was 0.9 (29 respondents), and the average amount for undergraduate students was 1.1 (29 respondents).

OPEN ACCESS FOCUS

Library publishers continue to strongly support open access publication. All libraries in the 2021 Directory indicated that open access publication was important to their publishing program. Almost one-half of the respondents indicated that their publications were completely open access. No respondent indicated that the open access focus of its publishing program was only somewhat or not at all important.

PUBLICATION TYPES

Campus journals (both faculty- and student-driven) and ETDs remain the most common types of materials supported by library publishers. Over one-half of the respondents publish campus faculty-driven journals or ETDs and over one-third publish campus student-driven journals. Also common are undergraduate theses, faculty conferences, textbooks, monographs, reports, and journals for external groups. One trend we see is a yearly increase in the publication of databases and datasets. Thirty-one respondents indicated that they publish datasets and eight reported publishing databases.

Library publishers also noted their publishing of less traditional forms of scholarly content, including digital exhibits, digital humanities projects, oral histories, podcasts, and research posters.

The survey asked respondents to list up to five of the disciplinary or subject specialties represented in their institution's publications. One hundred respondents listed at least one discipline or subject. The disciplines listed skewed heavily toward the social sciences and humanities, though there are certainly many STEM publications. The most common HSS subjects were African American literature and studies, education, history, anthropology/archaeology, law, library and information science, literature and literary studies, music, philosophy, political science, and religion and theology. STEM fields reported included nursing, public health, biology, engineering, medicine and health sciences, and mathematics.

PARTNERSHIPS

Library publishers continue to report that they have ongoing partnerships with faculty and departments/units within their organizations. Eighty percent of the 2021 Directory respondents indicated that they partner with other organizational departments. Slightly over 20% indicated a partnership with a university press. Similar to last year, many library publishers (60%) revealed that they are open to working with external partners if there is some sort of tie to the institution. About 12% of the publishers indicated a willingness to work with any external partner.

The 2021 survey asked library publishers whether they were part of a consortium and if so, what type of support was provided by the consortium. Twenty publishers indicated they were members of a consortium. The most common types of support listed were hosting services and technical support; hosted platforms include OJS, DSpace, Pressbooks, and Dataverse.

PLATFORMS & TECHNOLOGY

One of the most fluid aspects of library publishing is which platforms and technologies are being used. Publishing platforms and preservation infrastructures are constantly being developed, tested, deployed, and upgraded. The library publishing community appears open to new tools, migrating to new platforms, and supporting community-led projects. For the past several years, almost two-thirds of library publishers reported utilizing multiple platforms and technical solutions across their publication portfolios.

OJS (46%), bepress [Digital Commons] (30%), DSpace (31%), Omeka (23%), and WordPress (23%) remain the most heavily used platforms. The past three years have seen newer options such as PressBooks, Dataverse, Manifold, and Janeway gain users.

One hundred and twenty-three respondents provided information about their use of preservation platforms; 71 of those publishers use more than one preservation method. Similar to last year, just over 20% of respondents indicated that they were discussing which digital preservation option(s) to adopt. About 30% of respondents rely on an in-house preservation method, system, or workflow. The most common digital preservation methods remain Amazon S3 and Amazon S3 Glacier, LOCKSS, HathiTrust, PKP Preservation, CLOCKSS, and Archivematica.

SERVICES OFFERED BY LIBRARY PUBLISHERS

Library publishers provide a wide suite of services to their publishing partners. Almost 70% of the 2021 Directory publishers indicated that they provide copyright support, training, and DOI assignment. Over half provide metadata services, ISSN assignment, digitization, hosting of supplemental content, and analytics. Of these services, only digitization services have become less common over the course of the past five years. In 2016, 82% of library publishers were offering digitization; in 2021, only 52% were offering the service.

ABOUT THE DATA

The LPC maintains archived datasets for each year's survey. All datasets are available from the LPC in their raw format (comma-separated value) upon request. A full statistical analysis of the data from the past eight years, as a set, has never been completed and is a rich opportunity for research.

HOW TO READ AN ENTRY

Collecting and synthesizing the information provided by over 150 libraries in an evolving and experimental field like library publishing presents numerous challenges. Even in this eighth edition, we are refining our approach to data collection and presentation. We are pleased to present what we believe is the most accurate and complete Directory to date, but we ask that you continue to bear with minor inconsistencies that appear across entries.

Each of the entries in the Directory undergoes minor editing for style and consistency, but we largely leave it up to libraries to present their publishing programs as they see fit. Labeling and categorizing the diverse set of “library publishing” activities is no easy feat nor is setting boundaries around funding streams, staffing, and services that bear specifically on library publishing activities.

Respondents were instructed to base their answers on the past 12 months of their library activity, a period covering from July 2019 to June 2020. Some survey questions asked for a scaled response. “Describe the degree to which your focus is on Open Access” presented respondents with a scale from 1 (not at all) to 5 (completely). Likewise, “Which best describes your library publishing efforts?” offered values of 1 (pilot) through 3 (established). These numbers should help readers interpret program data. Additionally, respondents were free to skip questions, and thus some entries in the Directory are more complete than others.

While we aim to present a full picture of the field, the Directory does not claim to be comprehensive. The questionnaire we use to collect data for the Directory was distributed to major library email lists and forums in the United States and Canada, to some international lists and regional lists in other areas, and directly to representatives of all the libraries featured in previous Directories. As in previous years, the majority of entries come from North America, though there are a growing number of excellent programs from around the world represented.

Finally, readers will notice the presence of “seals” next to the title of some entries. These acknowledge the support of our Library Publishing Coalition Members and our Founding and Contributing Institutions, which contributed seed funding for the project that founded the organization. To recognize their exceptional contributions, we include profiles of specific publications that current LPC member institutions have nominated. These also give a practical sense of the wide range of types of publications produced.

We look forward to continuing to produce and improve the Directory with the input and participation of this vibrant community.

ADDITIONAL INFORMATION

Plans for expansion/future directions: Robert E. Kennedy Library has continued work in the Digital Publishing Pilot, continuing to work to enhance access to Cal Poly scholarship through a digitally immersive, interactive system that focuses on collaboration, accessible approaches, and recognition of individuals' places within structural systems. This structural solution brings inclusive practices, equity, and justice to the forefront of scholarly publishing at Cal Poly, centering historically underrepresented identities, perspectives, and creativity. The system, to be titled Poly Publishing, will define best practices, standards, and workflows for publishing faculty exhibits at Kennedy Library. By establishing fundamentals such as using open review systems, establishing models of community guidelines, reassessment of multimodal scholarship, and creating a common vocabulary, Poly Publishing hopes to continue to provide an accessible, accountable, and transparent publishing system.

HIGHLIGHTED PUBLICATION

sprinkle: an undergraduate journal of feminist and queer studies is a peer-reviewed journal at Cal Poly devoted to the diverse voices of emerging scholar-activists, authors, and artists in Women's, Gender & Queer Studies and related fields of inquiry. The journal is conceived for audiences with commitments to social justice work—in scholarly, activist, and creative forms—not only in feminist and queer studies but also in critical race and ethnic studies; dis/ability studies; global and transnational studies; cultural and media studies; science, technology, and society studies; and many other fields.

PROGRAM OVERVIEW

Mission statement: Established in 2000, Clemson University Press has expanded in recent years, adding approximately 25 books and journal issues per annum to its strong backlist of more than 100 titles. In 2014, the Press entered into a partnership with Liverpool University Press, an award-winning publisher of distinguished scholarship since 1899. Through this strategic international partnership, the Press is a global ambassador for Clemson University (an R1 classified, top-25 public university), distributing increasingly diverse and impactful scholarship worldwide. Our ambitious publishing program continues to highlight the rigorous standard of critical and creative output from Clemson and further distinguishes the University as a center for research and culture. All of our publications enjoy the highest standards through external review and appraisal by the Editorial Advisory Board.

PROGRAM OVERVIEW

Mission statement: The Emory Center for Digital Scholarship (ECDS) provides consulting expertise, project coordination, and a technology-rich collaborative space for faculty, staff, and students to incorporate digital tools and methods into research, teaching, and publishing. The multidisciplinary ECDS staff of scholars, librarians, faculty, and graduate students work with individuals at Emory and partner institutions to create innovative and sustainable models of digital scholarship and pedagogy for academic and public use.

Emory University Libraries' mission: Deliver and produce distinctive services, information, and content; preserve and promote our intellectual and cultural heritage; engage as partners in the academic enterprise to advance student and faculty success; create diverse and engaging environments for work, production, study, and intellectual and social engagement; initiate, implement, and teach emerging trends in technology and information literacy; and cultivate an organizational culture of agility and innovation.

ADDITIONAL INFORMATION

Plans for expansion/future directions: In 2015, Emory Libraries started its Digital Library Program, a multiyear initiative to promote best practices and provide long-term access to Emory's unique digital assets and collections. Our goal was to develop a versatile and feature-rich digital repository platform using the open source Samvera framework. In April 2020, we celebrated the beta launch of the new repository, Emory Digital Collections, which features five pilot collections. We are planning the ingest of our existing institutional repository for faculty scholarship, OpenEmory, as well as our ETD repository, Emory Theses and Dissertations, into the larger Emory Digital Collections platform, which will also continue to ingest digital collections from Emory's Stuart A. Rose Manuscript, Archives and Rare Book Library, among others.

The Emory Center for Digital Scholarship recently launched version 2 of Readux, a platform for publishing thematic research collections and scholarly editions of digitized books, and version 3 of its OpenTourBuilder, a tool for creating mobile walking, biking, and driving tours. ECDS is actively seeking partnerships with other institutions interested in adopting these platforms for their own publishing initiatives.

HIGHLIGHTED PUBLICATION

The Federal Constitution contains a series of rights and liberties operating as restrictions on the powers of government; and courts have the final authority to determine what these often nebulous restrictions require. But judges are deeply divided over the correct methodology with which to make these determinations: different judges employ different judicial philosophies—and may consequently reach different constitutional results. Understanding these methodological disagreements is therefore crucial for anyone wishing to attain a full understanding of our constitutional law, or to appraise the legitimacy of our institutional arrangements—especially that of judicial review. In The Silent Prologue, Professor Ofer Raban provides an engaging examination of the interpretive theories judges use to reach their verdicts. Using key case histories for illustration, Professor Raban illuminates the rationales and assumptions behind competing points-of-view which have far-reaching implications for the rights of American citizens.

Studies in Digital Heritage (SDH) is a peer-reviewed, open access journal appearing three times a year and dedicated to publishing articles showing how technology can support innovative research across the traditional fields of cultural heritage. The founders, Bernie Frischer and Gabriele Guidi, were motivated to start SDH after struggling with a commercial publisher to lower the article processing charge (APC) of another journal they were co-editing. Published in collaboration with Indiana University's Office of Scholarly Publishing, SDH does not charge an APC and supports embedded interactive 3D models through 3DHOP and Sketchfab.

HIGHLIGHTED PUBLICATION

Action research is a common journey for graduate students in education and other human science fields. This book attempts to meet the needs of graduate students, in-service teachers, and any other educators interested in action research and/or self-study. The chapters of this book draw on our collective experiences as educators in a variety of educational contexts, and our roles guiding educators/researchers in various settings. All of our experiences have enabled us to question and refine our own understanding of action research as a process and means for pedagogical improvement.

Website: <https://leverpress.org>

Social media: https://twitter.com/Lever_Press

PROGRAM OVERVIEW

Mission statement: Lever Press is grounded on a set of values and guided by clear commitments. The values on which we are basing our work are

- producing the highest quality scholarship in an economically sustainable model,
- embodying and reflecting the values of the liberal arts, and
- leading the way in establishing best practices for born-digital, peer-reviewed, open access monograph publishing.

As a press aligned with the ethos and mission of liberal arts colleges, we seek out, identify, evaluate, and advocate for transformative scholarship that spurs creative dialogue within and between traditional fields of inquiry, emphasizes disciplinary innovation, draws upon new models of collaborative research, and strives to reach the broadest audience possible. We value

- leadership and the courage to push existing boundaries,
- diverse voices and viewpoints,
- the principles of equity and social justice,
- building community among our members and beyond, and
- continuous learning.

By living our values, we will be responsive to the needs of readers, authors, and member institutions, share our liberal arts focus broadly, and engage globally with others in the exchange of new scholarship.

PROGRAM OVERVIEW

Mission statement: Our primary task is to facilitate journal publication for faculty and students at McMaster University, but the nature of scholarly publishing entails supporting scholars well beyond our campus as well. We welcome the participation of scholars from around the world in the journals we host.

Year publishing activities began: 2006

Institution type: academic library

Organization: centralized library publishing unit/department

Funding sources (%): library operating budget (100)

Stage of publishing efforts (1-3): 3—established

Comments: McMaster University Library Press (MULPress) is committed to the principles of open access. Moving forward, we will only support journals that employ an open access business model, although we will continue indefinitely to support those currently in our list that use a hybrid model. We strongly discourage our journals from using article processing charges (APCs); while APCs can be a viable transitional funding model for an open access journal, they engender some negative outcomes and practices. To best support journals that choose open access, we do not charge for our publishing services but rather consider them to be central to a library's mission to support the production and dissemination of scholarship. As such, we urge scholars who publish their journals with us to extend that approach to their authors and readers.

HIGHLIGHTED PUBLICATION

Tennessee's history between the end of the American Civil War (1865) and the passages of the 1964 Civil Rights Act and 1965 Voting Rights Act often gets ignored. Through objects, music, photographs, documents, and visualizations this website offers insights into the transformations that took place as Tennesseans pursued the rights of citizenship, showing challenges and obstacles and also telling us of triumphs—that people can scale the most brutal of social, cultural, and economic walls and create still vibrant communities, institutions, and culture in the wake of their struggle.

OREGON STATE UNIVERSITY

Oregon State University Libraries and Press

Primary unit: Emerging Technologies and Services

Primary contact: Michael Boock
Scholarly Communication Librarian
michael.boock@oregonstate.edu

Website: <http://dpi.library.oregonstate.edu/>

PROGRAM OVERVIEW

Mission statement: Oregon State University Libraries' publishing activities are primarily focused on the dissemination of scholarship produced by OSU faculty and students. This is achieved through a number of different channels:

The institutional repository, ScholarsArchive@ OSU, which includes material such as electronic theses and dissertations, agricultural and forestry extension and experiment station reports, conference proceedings, and faculty data sets.

Hosted open access journals. OSU Libraries support OJS-hosted journals and have been central in helping new campus-based journals using the editorial management and hosting service Scholastica.

We also create and host a number of Press-related projects using the Scalar platform and provide open access to excerpts from Press books and supplementary materials such as maps and data sets. OSU Libraries also collaborates with OSU Press and OSU Extended Campus to publish open textbooks by OSU faculty. Other publishing activities involve the development of online resources that present the unique holdings of OSU Libraries, such as the Oregon Hops and Brewing Archives, the Linus and Ava Helen Pauling Papers, and related archival collections in the History of Science. We use the publishing platform Scalar to publish content largely related to our special collections.

The research published within the Penn State Journal of Medicine (PSJM) is the work of students that allows for advancement of medical education via clinical outcome, basic science, medical education, quality improvement, health systems research, and any other research that may be of importance to the clinical field. As a student-run journal, the mission is twofold—to provide an avenue for students to display their work on a peer-reviewed platform and to provide students the feedback they need to improve the quality of their work in a learning environment. The audience of this journal includes medical students, residents, fellows, attending physicians, other clinical faculty, clinical scientists and any other interested readers at the Penn State College of Medicine and beyond.

HIGHLIGHTED PUBLICATION

This chapbook anthology of poems by female-identifying Romantic-era poets writing in English is the product of a senior-year seminar in English literature at Simon Fraser University in the Summer term of 2020. Each student found a poet and poem that interested them and contributed a section to the chapbook: each section contains a headnote with biographical/other contextual information, an edited version of the poem, and explanatory footnotes.

PROGRAM OVERVIEW

Mission statement: eScholarship Publishing provides comprehensive publication services for UC-affiliated departments, research units, publishing programs, and individual scholars who seek to publish original, open access journals, books, preprints, conference proceedings, and other scholarship. Our program, in particular, supports publications that traverse standard disciplinary boundaries, explore new publishing models, and/or seek to reach professionals in applied fields beyond academia.

We are currently partnering with other organizations on an Arcadia-funded Next Generation Library Publishing (NGLP) project, which aims to advance and integrate open source publishing infrastructure to provide robust support for library publishing. Project goals include:

- Creating a more balanced, effective academic publishing ecosystem that aligns with academic values and increases choice, opportunity, and innovation via compelling library publishing solutions.
- Developing tools and standards that allow better integration of campus repository systems and publishing workflows across the lifecycle of scholarly research.
- Establishing sustainable, community-governed, open solutions that rival best-of-breed commercial tools and advance scholarly communication in important ways.

PROGRAM OVERVIEW

Mission statement: We offer our open access journal publishing platform to more comprehensively support, record, and promote the scholarly activities of faculty and students, providing opportunities for creating and widely disseminating new scholarship and improving the look and discoverability of existing journals. We seek to educate researchers and community members about the larger contexts of open access and their options in terms of making their scholarship widely available, accessible, and discoverable, whether through the creation of journals or via deposit in our institutional repository.

PROGRAM OVERVIEW

Mission statement: The George A. Smathers Libraries at the University of Florida engages in library publishing as a collaborative endeavor. The Libraries publish scholarly, educational, and creative works, with an emphasis on promoting public access to scholarship and ethical practices in scholarly publishing. The Libraries' publishing initiatives complement the work of the University of Florida Press (UF Press) to collectively contribute to the shared missions of the Libraries, Press, and UF.

The LibraryPress@UF works alongside our partners to disseminate open access publications for a range of audiences:

- Works based on the Libraries' unique collections
- Scholarly journals and magazines
- Open educational resources, where the Libraries' team supports creation, publishing, and discoverability
- Digital scholarship and born-digital publications

The Libraries' Institutional Repository at UF (IR@UF) provides a permanent access and preservation repository for publishing and serves as the publication system for original work, including theses and dissertations, conference proceedings and presentations, reports, newsletters, creative works, and datasets.

The Libraries' team provides training and promotes best practices in publishing.

ADDITIONAL INFORMATION

Plans for expansion/future directions: With three personnel added to the LibraryPress@UF program in 2018–2019, we have scaled up the number of projects and scope of the work undertaken by our program. This includes in-progress digital monographs and open educational resources, as well as broader development of web publishing infrastructure. We are also working to more intentionally address equity, inclusion, and justice in our program as we consider potential partnerships, the disciplinary focus of new publications, and journal publishing policies.

Critical Studies in Improvisation / Études critiques en improvisation is an open access, peer-reviewed, electronic, academic journal on improvisation, community, and social practice housed at the University of Guelph. We are particularly interested in historically and contextually specific articles that interrogate improvisation as a social and musical practice and that assess how innovative performance practices play a role in developing new, socially responsive forms of community building across national, cultural, and artistic boundaries.

Practical Assessment, Research, and Evaluation (PARE) aims to provide access to peer-reviewed open access articles that can have a positive impact on how assessment, research, and evaluation are used by educational professionals at all levels. While these articles are most often prepared for practitioners, such as teachers, administrators, and assessment personnel who work in schools and school systems, PARE articles often target other audiences, including researchers, policy makers, parents, and students.

PROGRAM OVERVIEW

Mission statement: eScholarship@UMMS is a digital repository and publishing system offering worldwide access to scholarly publications authored by the University of Massachusetts Medical School (UMMS) community. Our goal is to serve as a portfolio for institutional successes by collecting, organizing, disseminating, and showcasing UMMS achievements in research and education by our faculty, researchers, staff, and students. eScholarship@UMMS increases citation impact and visibility and expands the reach of UMMS scholarship worldwide. We welcome submissions from UMMS faculty, staff, and students for articles, manuscripts, presentations, posters, datasets, and other scholarly materials. Our publishing services—including open access, peer-reviewed electronic journals, student dissertations and theses, and conference proceedings—highlight the works of UMMS authors and others. eScholarship@UMMS is a service of the Lamar Soutter Library, Worcester, MA, U.S.A., in support of its mission to disseminate information and research to scholars, educators, and the public.

HIGHLIGHTED PUBLICATION

Murmurs: Stories from Our Journey in Medicine is a narrative medicine podcast developed by two medical students that explores how health providers and trainees think about their experiences in medicine. Each episode features a member of the UMass Medical School community discussing a poem or essay they have written about an impactful moment in their medical education or career and taking the listener through the inspiration, writing process, and interview with the author. Through these podcasts, we hope to build community, promote reflection and increase awareness of issues of medical education and health inequality.

PROGRAM OVERVIEW

Mission statement: The UNO Library offers ScholarWorks@UNO as a publishing platform for faculty and student scholarship. Our goal is to provide the tools and support for the broadest possible dissemination of campus research and creative work, thereby fulfilling a key element of the University mission: the promotion of research excellence. In so doing, we provide opportunities for students to engage with scholarly communications issues and take their first steps as scholars in their respective disciplines. Our broad range of publications, which currently include a student-edited, peer-reviewed literary journal, conference proceedings, working papers, technical reports, and student theses and dissertations, engage both our local community and the worldwide audience of readers and scholars. In the future, we hope to host even more kinds of scholarly and creative work, including datasets and multimedia content. By combining a dynamic publishing platform with expert support, we can contribute to a more open and innovative scholarly communication system that facilitates discovery, collaboration, and the advancement of knowledge.

HIGHLIGHTED PUBLICATION

The UNC Charlotte School of Nursing was founded in 1965 under the direction of President Bonnie Cone in what was then the Charlotte College. Miss Bonnie's Nurses: The First Fifty Years of Nursing at UNC Charlotte traces the history of the school to its position today as the premier choice for providing the highest quality of nursing education with a commitment to community engagement in the Charlotte region and beyond. Ann Mabe Newman and Dona Haney, both alumni with close ties going back to the program's earliest years, add their personal perspective to this account of the people who shaped the institution and its history. Adding to their close knowledge of the school are the voices and memories of deans, alumni, and faculty that were collected for the book. Featuring more than fifty photographs, Miss Bonnie's Nurses documents and celebrates the contributions of a community of scholars and nurses that educate over 500 students annually as they enter the extraordinary world of nursing and begin their careers in healthcare.

PROGRAM OVERVIEW

Mission statement: The USF Libraries strive to develop and encourage research collaboration and initiatives throughout all areas of campus. Members of the USF community are encouraged to deposit their research with Scholar Commons. We commit to assisting faculty, staff, and students in all stages of the deposit process, to managing their work to optimize access/readership, and to ensure long-term preservation. Long-term preservation and increasing accessibility will increase citation rates and highlight the research accomplishments of this campus. Scholar Commons will have a direct impact on the University's four strategic goals: student success, research innovation, sound financial management, and creating new partnerships.

PROGRAM OVERVIEW

Mission statement: UTA Libraries Publishing Program provides open access publishing services to advance the creation and dissemination of knowledge and to collaboratively work to promote the academic and professional success of faculty, staff, and students within the UT Arlington community. The UTA Libraries' publishing program showcases and publishes the University's scholarly output in digital form and makes it freely accessible globally. The institutional repository, ResearchCommons (RC), is a publishing platform for faculty scholarship, student theses and dissertations, undergraduate research, and exceptional student work. We offer the Mavs Dataverse where researchers can share, preserve, and publish data. Mavs Open Press publishing services provides platforms for open access journal publishing and broad sharing of open education resource content with production services.

PROGRAM OVERVIEW

Mission statement: Scholarly Commons is publishing original knowledge in the form of several journals, conferences, and open educational resources (OER). Contributions to this repository showcase the intellectual and creative output of University of the Pacific faculty, students, alumni, and staff, ensuring long-term preservation and worldwide electronic accessibility.

Benefits

- Supports University of the Pacific's Pacific 2020 vision to "build the strength, relevance, and reputation of Pacific's academic programs"
- Provides online open access to University of the Pacific's intellectual output from a centralized system
- Publishing research in Scholarly Commons fulfills the requirement mandated by many funding agencies that researchers provide open access archiving for sponsored research
- Increases the global visibility of University of the Pacific scholarly output on Google, Google Scholar, and other search engines
- Provides 24/7 online access to University of the Pacific research, scholarship, and creative works to local and global communities
- Provides a workspace for collaborative projects and development and sharing of teaching materials

H I G H L I G H T E D P U B L I C A T I O N

The Politics of Annexation, a newly formatted open access version of the original 1982 edition, examines the process of American cities using annexation of suburban areas as a tool to increase their tax base and generate new revenue. The authors find that the annexation by Richmond, Virginia of part of Chesterfield County in 1970 was in fact racially motivated and a way to dilute the black vote.

PROGRAM OVERVIEW

Mission statement: To publish high-quality original academic research online at minimal or no cost and without making a profit, to ensure that the publications conform to open access principles, and to comply with funder and HEFCE mandates through Creative Commons licences.

Vision: To develop Cardiff University Press further as a high-impact, pioneering institutional publisher, committed to innovation and excellence in publishing, for the benefit of both academia and the wider external community.

Aims:

- To support open access to scholarly research
- To facilitate cross-disciplinary and international research collaborations
- To increase Cardiff University's engagement with the wider community, both local and international, by making the University's own research outputs more accessible to everyone
- To ensure that Cardiff University Press publications are compliant with the next REF (Research Excellence Framework) where applicable
- To provide excellent services to editors and authors
- To support the professionalization of Cardiff University students by offering them work experience on editorial teams
- To provide innovative publishing opportunities not readily available elsewhere
- To offer a platform for research outputs in the Welsh language
- To work with other universities and learned societies throughout the U.K. and worldwide, providing publishing opportunities for their research.

ADDITIONAL INFORMATION

Additional information: Scientific and Technical Library DNURT was the first in Ukraine to start providing services for digital library publishing (DLP). For Ukrainian librarians and their colleagues from other countries, webinars, trainings, discussion of reports at the annual international conference University Library at a New Stage of Social Communications Development are held (http://conflib.diit.edu.ua/Conf_univ_Library2020). The development of DLP services at Ukrainian universities is disclosed in the article by Kolesnykova, T., & Matveyeva, O. (2019). "An Analysis of Digital Library Publishing Services in Ukrainian Universities" Evidence Based Library and Information Practice 14 (4), 52–71. <https://doi.org/10.18438/eblip29510>

Plans for expansion/future directions: Further development of library publishing, improving its reputation and influence. We hope to expand our collections of e-journals and e-conferences. We plan to increase the number of scientific publications and educational resources of scientists and students of DNURT through the expansion of the repository and the promotion of its capabilities. At the end of 2020, it is planned to release a popular science publication on the Open Monograph Press platform. Master's theses will also be published in the eaDNURT repository in December 2020.

Social media: <https://blogs.fau.de/universitaetsverlag/>

PROGRAM OVERVIEW

Mission statement: The University Library supervises FAU University Press on behalf of Friedrich-Alexander-Universität Erlangen-Nürnberg (FAU). The aim is to provide a quick and low-cost way of publishing and distributing selected works by members of the university and FAU institutions in digital form and print form. Works published cover the full range of disciplines taught at FAU.

To ensure the development of FAU University Press and maintain the academic quality of the FAU Forschungen series, the University Administration has set up an Academic Advisory Board, the tasks and composition of which are specified in the Regulations for the Academic Advisory Board (only German) of FAU University Press.

FAU University Press supports the concept of open access and all publications are made freely accessible for download to the academic community at any time through the OPUS FAU repository.

FAU University Press thus observes the recommendations of the German Rectors' Conference (only German) and the Federal Ministry of Education and Research (only German). These call for setting up university infrastructures to enable free worldwide online access to academic information as a means of facilitating the rate and efficiency of academic research, teaching and learning.

A distinctive editorial and qualitative policy is at the core of all of our products. Please read our editorial and publication ethics policies: <http://www.university-press.fau.de/publizieren/informationen-und-downloads-fuer-autoren-en.shtml>.

ADDITIONAL INFORMATION

Plans for expansion/future directions: The IPWEAQ Knowledge Centre has seen a doubling in usage over the past 12 months. While its primary role is to be the first site of publishing for papers, articles, and proceeding from various conferences, the intention going forward is to also act as an intermediary space, intersecting with academic engineering journals and advocating on behalf of our contributors for wider publication opportunities within those journals. It has also proven to be a site of knowledge generation with users accessing and sharing information while working from home during the COVID 19 isolation period.

PROGRAM OVERVIEW

Mission statement: The Chinese University of Hong Kong (CUHK) Digital Repository is a one-stop repository for accessing all the publicly available digital content created and maintained by the CUHK Library. The Library has started creating its digital collections since 1995 with the purposes to preserve significant academic and intellectual work from the Library's special collections and donation, some of which are not available elsewhere in Hong Kong; to promote access and sharing of these materials; and to support research and learning. The Library has now built a substantial mass of millions of digital files in different areas ranging from literature, culture, arts, politics, society, and religion and different formats including rare/semi-rare books, journal articles, correspondences and manuscripts, oracle bones, photos, and audio-visual files.

THE ROYAL DANISH LIBRARY

Primary contact: Jesper Boserup Thestrup
Communications Officer
jbt@kb.dk

Website: <https://tidsskrift.dk/>

PROGRAM OVERVIEW

Mission statement: Tidsskrift.dk is a service that ensures that Danish scientific journals can publish online. Tidsskrift.dk ensures that journals publishing in print can publish online and that new journals can be established online. The journals must be open access after one year. The journals must be related to a Danish university or a Danish research institution, a Danish museum, or a Danish scientific society. The journals must normally be peer reviewed, but we do accept other kinds of journals. For example, some of our journals are student journals where a researcher from the relevant university does the editorial process and not via blind peer review. Not all the journals are active. The Royal Danish Library does use the server to publish older inactive Danish journals in order to ensure an online presence of Danish scientific material. The Royal Danish Library only provides the platform, dissemination of metadata, and services like DOIs. The journals must handle the editorial workflow, peer review, typesetting, copyright issues, design, etc.

PROGRAM OVERVIEW

Mission statement: The Libraries acquire printed and electronic HKU theses for PhD, MPhil, and SJD programmes. The printed theses are transferred and stored in The HKU Archives while the ETDs (Electronic Theses & Dissertations) are on open access and published in the Scholars Hub under the licensing of the Creative Commons Attribution-NonCommercial-NoDerivatives 4.0 International License with the Crossref DOI.

The Libraries provides a comprehensive repository (DataHub) for research data and other forms of scholarly outputs publishing. DataHub targets to storing, citing, sharing, and discovering research data and all scholarly outputs. It collects, preserves, and provides stable, long-term global open access to a wide range of research data and scholarly outputs created by HKU researchers and RPG students in the course of their research and teaching.

H I G H L I G H T E D P U B L I C A T I O N

From a rare map of yellow fever in eighteenth-century New York, to Charles Booth's famous maps of poverty in nineteenth-century London, to an Italian racial zoning map of early twentieth-century Asmara, to a map of wealth disparities in the banlieues of twenty-first-century Paris, Mapping Society traces the evolution of social cartography over the past two centuries. In this richly illustrated book, Laura Vaughan examines maps of ethnic or religious difference, poverty, and health inequalities, demonstrating how they not only serve as historical records of social enquiry, but also constitute inscriptions of social patterns that have been etched deeply on the surface of cities.

PROGRAM OVERVIEW

Mission statement: The University Library of UiT The Arctic University of Norway considers itself a pillar of the institution's Open Access Policy, which mandates self-archiving of peer-reviewed articles, choice of gold open access publishing venues whenever possible, and open archiving of all master's theses and doctoral dissertations. Theses and dissertations, as well as self-archived work by the faculty, are made openly available through the green OA institutional repository <https://munin.uit.no>. Several series (occasional reports as well as regular peer-reviewed journals) with editors affiliated to UiT are being published through the gold OA publishing service <https://septentrio.uit.no>. Library staff provide technical support, metadata control, DOIs, persistent storage as well as indexing of all content in Munin and Septentrio. Moreover, UiT has a strong policy on open sharing of research data. For this purpose, the library runs an international, subject-specific data archive, <https://Dataverse.no/Dataverse/trolling>, for open data in linguistics, and a national, generic repository, <https://Dataverse.no/>, for open data from researchers affiliated with UiT or partner institutions across the country. All datasets are curated by trained library staff before publication.

PROGRAM OVERVIEW

Mission statement: To make African scholarship openly accessible so that Africans can contribute to and participate in creating knowledge for Africa. Driven by social justice imperatives for development, these new voices democratize knowledge creation. The domino effect would be the growth in African scholarship. This will ensure that African scholarship moves from the periphery of the knowledge economy to the epicentre.

Year publishing activities began: 2015

Institution type: academic library

Organization: centralized library publishing unit/department

Total FTE in support of publishing activities: professional staff (3)

Funding sources (%): library operating budget (100)

Stage of publishing efforts (1–3): 3—established

Comments: UCT Libraries practices diamond open access, which means that the open access journals, monographs, and textbooks are free to reader, and authors publishing on the platform do not pay for scholarship to be openly accessible.

Open access focus (1–5): 5—completely

Advisory/editorial board: no

PROGRAM OVERVIEW

Mission statement: The library provides open access-oriented publishing services to researchers, including Göttingen University Press, repositories for theses and peer-reviewed publications, and innovative publication data management and analysis. In addition, a central open access fund has been established, which covers article-processing charges and monitors the uptake of Gold open access at the University. These service areas are combined with strategic involvement in national and international initiatives, such as the working group for German-language university presses, the Association of European University Presses (AEUP), the European Research Infrastructure for the development of open scholarly communication in the social sciences and humanities (OPERAS), and other consortial activities. They work in both directions: they are crucial for enhancing local services and vice versa feed experiences and lessons learned into international collaborations.

PROGRAM OVERVIEW

Mission statement: Publishing and Data Services at the University of Sydney Library support the many ways that academics want to communicate the results of their research. We offer publishing platforms that support open journals and provide open access to digital materials, both text and multimedia. Sydney Open Journals is a fully featured journal publishing platform, offering editorial workflows from submission and selection, through peer review and feedback, to publication and promotion. The Sydney eScholarship Repository can store your technical reports, datasets, conference papers, as well as audio, video, and other multimedia material. All repository materials are searchable via Google Scholar, maximizing access to your content. Other solutions, including digitization, data visualization, and research data management are also available.

INVITATION TO JOIN

The Library Publishing Coalition (LPC) extends the impact and sustainability of library publishing and open scholarship by providing a professional forum for developing best practices and shared expertise.

The LPC is a vibrant community that is strongly member-driven. Specific benefits of membership include the opportunity to:

- Engage with an international community of practice: Membership includes access to the LPC listserv, the opportunity to attend member-only events, and special registration rates to the annual Library Publishing Forum.
- Jump-start or enhance your library publishing initiatives: Membership includes access to the LPC's Shared Documentation Library, where members share everything from checklists for starting new journals to model MOUs. A series of community calls brings members together with leading experts and creators of tools and services.
- Lead change in scholarly communications and publishing: Members have voting rights in the Coalition and can serve on committees and task forces that directly advance the field of library publishing.

VISIT LIBRARYPUBLISHING.ORG FOR MORE INFORMATION.

The LPC is an independent, international, community-led membership association with over 80 members. The LPC extends the impact and sustainability of library publishing and open scholarship by providing a professional forum for developing best practices and shared expertise. The LPC was founded with seed support from the Educopia Institute and participating libraries. The LPC is an Affiliated Community of the Educopia Institute. More information can be found at www.librarypublishing.org.

The eighth edition of the Library Publishing Directory provides a snapshot of the publishing activities of over 150 academic and research libraries, including information about the number and types of publications they produce, the services they offer authors, how they are staffed and funded, and their future plans. In documenting the breadth and depth of activities in this field, this resource aims to articulate the unique value of library publishing; to establish it as a significant and growing community of practice; and to raise its visibility within a number of stakeholder communities, including administrators, funding agencies, other scholarly publishers, librarians, and content creators.

Specifically, this Directory:

- Introduces readers to the growing field of library publishing and helps articulate its unique characteristics as a distinctive publishing field.
- Facilitates collaboration among library publishers and other publishing entities, especially the university presses and learned societies that share their values.
- Alerts authors of scholarly content to a range of potential publishing partners dedicated to supporting their experimentation with new forms of scholarly communication and open access business models.
- Enables benchmarking and identification of trends in the field.

The Directory is also available Open Access in several electronic formats through www.librarypublishing.org.
